ADDRESS.

It is really with solemn feelings of responsibility that we draw up this brief Address. Though fully aware that there existed a real want of such a Magazine as we propose to issue; yet we were not fully aware, as we now are, that the Teachers were so anxiously longing for the appearance of such a Periodical. The numerous letters which—since the issuing of our proposal in February last—have reached us from all parts of the kingdom awaken in our mind almost painful feelings of interest. From young and aged labourers in the Lord's vineyard, from Teachers and Superintendents, from the Clergyman and the Clergyman's Wife, have come such strong representations of the necessity for a new and practical Teacher's Magazine, that we almost feel inclined to upbraid ourselves for not having before this time ventured to come directly to the Teacher's aid. Indirectly, our "Children's Magazine" has been an auxiliary to the Teachers; but we feel we might have given our dear friends more direct and especial help, by furnishing them with materials worked up ready for use; pointing out the best plans, and thus preparing them at once for their classes.

The evident feeling which exists in favour of a cheap monthly, instead of a quarterly, periodical has decided us to issue our New Magazine once a Month, and to make it Threepence, instead of Sixpence, in price. One correspondent says—"Do let me entreat you to give it a twelvemonth's trial." Will this teacher, and all other teachers, remember, that if a sufficient number of copies should not be sold, a "twelvemonth's trial" would entail a very large pecuniary loss? We intend to give so large an amount of matter for the money, that we shall lose by it unless we can sell every month at least 3,000 copies. Our friends must bestir themselves at once, and zealously, and then they must ensure the success of our important enterprise. They can have as many copies of this prospectus as they please, by writing to us for them, and enclosing a penny stamp. Could not some friend in every Town or District undertake to canvass the Schools, and send us word how many would take in our New Magazine?

I.

A CATECHISM OF THE ARTICLES OF THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND,

Intended for the Use of Schools.

By the REVEREND F. OWEN, M.A.

Fifth Edition, 18mo. 6d.

"Mr. Owen has applied his positions and statements to the standard of 'the law and the testimony;' and unscrupulously does he appear to have adhered to the direction of this unerring guide. It is quite evident that he has also taken pains to express himself in terms level to the understanding of the youngest student and the meanest capacity. Although this short catechism is 'intended for the use of schools,' the author might also have added schools of divinity or for catechumens,—those who are in a course of training and discipline for the ministerial office may consult it with great profit, and derive, perhaps, greater benefit from it than from more learned and laboured productions."

"This is a good book, and we have great pleasure in recommending it to our readers. Our clerical friends would find this a very useful tract for the advanced class of children in their Sunday Schools."—Christian Examiner.

II. A BRIEF VIEW OF ECCLESIASTICAL HISTORY, from the Earliest Periods to the Present Time. By H. T. Newman, M.A., Dean of Cork. 18mo. Cloth. 1s.

"This little work contains a brief summary of the history of the Church, and has been written chiefly for the instruction of reflecting and inquiring minds among the lower classes. The author has taken care to point out the comparative novelty of error, by distinctly stating at what periods each addition to, or perversion of, the truth arose, and to show that in every age there has been raised up witnesses, who have preserved the deposit of the faith once delivered to the saints."

AN INDEX TO SOME TEXTS OF SCRIPTURE, Which refute the leading Doctrines of the Church of Rome.

For the use of the humbler Classes of Protestants.

By the REV. A. P. HANLON, M.A.

2s. per 100; per post, 2s. 2d.

"This Index has been prepared in the hope that, by the co-operation of the Clergy, it may be adopted in all our parishes, and pasted into every Bible and Testament in use among our people. Though limited to two pages of 24mo. size, it contains forty subjects, which are divided into seven paragraphs, while those in each paragraph are doctrinally related. By means of this simple classification the subject in debate will catch the eye at the first glance, and the next moment the finger is on the required text."
